TOPOLA IN THE HEART OF SERBIA

DATE & TIME:
 Sunday, August 30th, 2009, 8⁰⁰h

The municipality of Topola is situated in the center of Serbia at the crossroads of some important traffic routes, just 80km south of Belgrade. It represents a unique monument of cultural-historical heritage of Serbian people, which makes it an attractive tourist destination. Sightseeing includes the following:

The Church of St. Djordje: This white marbled five-domed church was built between 1904. and 1912. It is the burial place of the Karadjordjević Dynasty. The interior of the church is decorated with a mosaic faithfully depicting the most beautiful medieval Serbian frescoes. With a surface area of 3,500 square meters and containing 15,000 various nuances, it is truly worth a visit. This church is one of the most visited cultural monuments in the country.

Karadjordje's fortified town dates from the XIX century. It was built by Karadjordje Petrović the leader of the first Serbian Uprising. The restored residences with one remaining tower, the church with the belfry and the school have all been preserved to the present day. Original ethnographic articles, items and documents are exhibited here. A monument to Karadjordje was recently built in the center of this fortified town.

House of King Petar I was built in 1912. Today it contains an art gallery and exposition of a number of personal artifacts that belonged to the Royal family.

Royal vineyard and winery renewed in 2004. now produces a four gold medal winner wine in the category of white wines - Sauvignon Blanc.

Gallery (The house of Vinogradar) was built in 1911. Today it is an art gallery containing work of a famous Serbian painter Nikola Graovac.

Sightseeing ends with a typical Serbian lunch at a local restaurant.
